LOS ANGELES November 21, 2006--In a new development, N-fluence Records label president Kenny Bereal has struck a deal for newly formed TYAD Music Group with the world's newest online digital music store DigStation to make TMG, DigStation's first record label music group. Parent company of DigStation, the CD manufacturing giant Disc Makers is pleased to have the music group and it's eight record labels in this agreement that will bring some 60 new artists to DigStation's online music store. TMG CEO Jerry Holden is also very pleased. "This is another major step towards TMG and our labels reaching out to the digital world of music. I can't say enough about the creative vision of Mr. Bereal to bring this exciting news to the table." A major advertising campaign is in the works to announce the agreement.
